

IANTD Recreational Trimix Diver Course Information

The IANTD Recreational Trimix Diver course is designed to give the diver access to safer breathing mixtures while remaining in the sports diving range. A typical Recreational Trimix might contain 32% oxygen and 15% helium, reducing narcosis and making the diving safer, more memorable and more enjoyable.

Qualification

Upon certification, you will be qualified to dive to 39msw using mixes with a fraction of oxygen between 21% and 40% and a fraction of helium that yields an equivalent narcotic depth no greater than 24msw.

Prerequisites

You should be qualified as an Advanced Open Water diver, or equivalent and have completed at least 15 logged dives. You should also already hold an EANx Diver qualification.

Equipment Requirements

You will be provided with the IANTD Recreational Trimix Diver Student Kit, including tables for dive planning. You will need a cylinder that is in test and oxygen service. A trimix dive computer, while not required, is handy.

Course Structure

The IANTD Recreational Trimix Diver Course consist of one classroom session and two dives, completed over two days. During the classroom session you will learn about both the physics and practical applications of recreational trimix diving, before getting chance to experience the benefits of helium during the dives.

Costs

The IANTD Recreational Trimix Diver Course is £169.00 per person. This price includes the training and materials outlined above. Certification costs are also included (providing certification criteria are met).

The following are not included in the course fee: Dive Site costs (inc. entry, accommodation, food, travel etc.), Gas and Sofnolime (if appropriate).

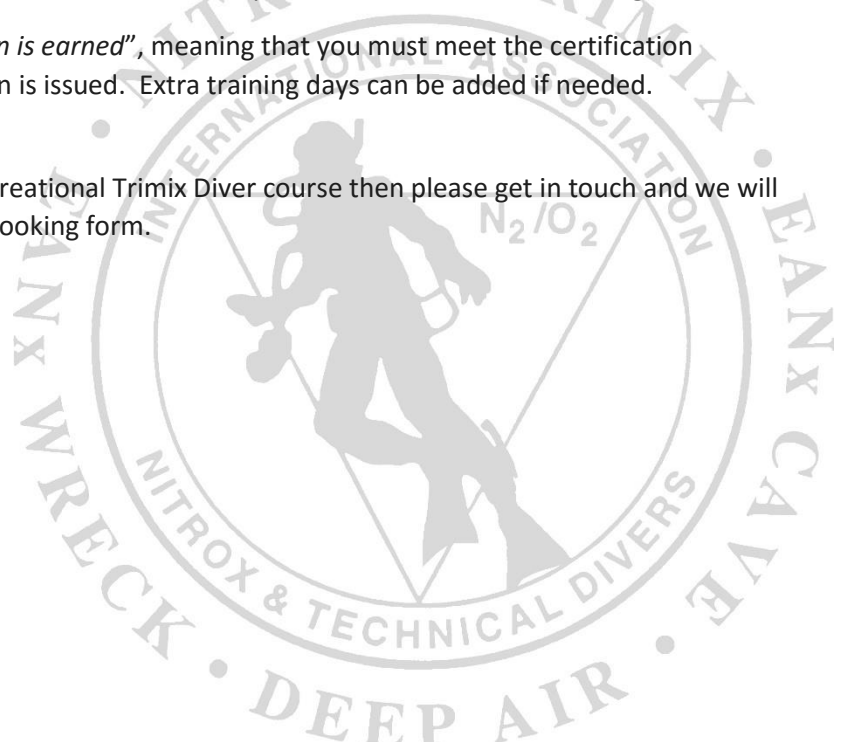

Evaluation / Assessment

Evaluation on the IANTD Recreational Trimix Diver course is continuous. Throughout the training you will be assessed on your skills, performance and attitude. You will also complete a multi-choice exam during the course.

With IANTD "Training is purchased, Certification is earned", meaning that you must meet the certification requirements and standards before certification is issued. Extra training days can be added if needed.
